GETORIX: THE EAGLE AND THE BULL

Celtic adventure in ancient Rome

by Judith Geary

GETORIX has one last opportunity to prove himself a hero. At “almost fifteen winters” he marches beside his father, a defeated Celtic leader in a Roman Triumph-- a celebration that ends in death for the defeated. Instead, he faces slavery, a fate worse than death.

Can Getorix accept friendship with the Roman who spares his life if the cost is his honor?

Modern readers will find that these two youths from opposing cultures inhabit a strangely familiar world.

“Superbly written ... thoroughly captivating and intimate story” – MIDWEST BOOK REVIEW

“Compelling novel, both for young adults and adults” – Trudi E. Jacobson, Historical Novel Review

“Authentic setting, dialogue, and characterization beckon readers to travel to worlds of long ago. ... the themes ... are as applicable today.” –ForeWord Magazine

Illustrations (114) by Caroline Garrett, by William Martin Johnson (from Ben Hur, 1901) & Thomas Hope (Costumes of the Greeks and Romans, 1812, Dover edition, 1962) maps, diagrams, glossary, biographies of historical characters, authors notes about the Roman calendar and other aspects of Roman life.
